High Mysticism by Emma Curtis Hopkins - Read the Complete ...

High Mysticism is arguably the "centerpiece" among her writings on religion. Ms. Hopkins, like all the best of the New Thought writers, was a synthesist of orthodox and heterodox Christian ideas, ideas from the eastern religions, and a number of ideas seemingly spawned anew in the "can do" America of the late 19th and early 20th Century.

It is high mysticism, whether knowingly practiced, as science, or unwittingly and spontaneously exercised, as inspiration. By science, which is the knowledge of invariable orderly processes, inspiration follows speedily.

High Mysticism - Chapter 1 - Repentance - The Silent Edict ...

High mysticism is divine nihilism. Truly, there is no knowledge except what is taught straight from Him who saith, "I will instruct thee, and teach thee." Truly, there is safety from drowning for any Peter who looks away from the stormy waters of human existence to Him who saith, "The flames shall not kindle, the waters shall not overflow, . . ." ". . . nothing shall by any means hurt you."

STUDIES IN HIGH MYSTICISM 9 is written of him that he was a finished mathematician, the inventor of boats and engines, instruments of war and hydraulics; also the author of the accepted Egyptian hieroglyphics, ever leading by his lonely self the ascetic life that he might pursue high philosophical speculations and prophetic insights. Secular history pre

High Mysticism: Ministry (2nd ed. 1921) - IAPSOP

In Mysticism, direct knowledge of spiritual truth or ultimate reality can be attained through subjective experience. Ultimate reality is something that is supreme, final, and the fundamental power in all reality. Unlike Christianity, Islam or Judaism, Mysticism is not rooted in faith, principle, dogma, or even belief.
